Dan Staley
Town Board

Dan is the seventh generation of Staleys in Rhinebeck. Many of his forbears were instrumental in making Rhinebeck the town it is today.

Bruce Washburn
Town Board

Bruce is a native of Dutchess County and has lived in Rhinebeck for 28 years, volunteering his time and skills to the young people of our community.

Continue the Legacy ... Because Rhinebeck Matters!

Remember, for more than 100 years, the Republican leadership of Rhinebeck, through community service, dedicated themselves to making Rhinebeck the community it is today. We pledge to continue this tradition.

Town and Village Partnerships With Independence for Each

In the Rhinebeck tradition, the governments of the town and village have stood side-by-side in meeting the needs of their constituents. Cooperation between the two bodies and the exploration of how shared services can benefit them both has grown. To help achieve better and more efficient services this collaboration expanded to include our school. These partnerships should continue, but it must also be recognized and affirmed that these are distinct entities and the independence of each must be respected and supported.

THAT'S WHAT OUR CANDIDATES PLEDGE!

Community Service Is Our Cornerstone

For people who were born here or moved here and adopted Rhinebeck's small-town values, the twin concepts of service to the community and involvement in the life of the community are deeply rooted. Children grow up playing sports, with their own parents and the parents of their friends acting as coaches and referees, cheering the teams on, repairing the fields, and doing all the fundraising to support those activities. Others participate in the work of their church, whichever creed or denomination, support school activities, or help out their elderly neighbors. They serve on local boards, become volunteer fire fighters and participate in local government. It's service at the grass-roots level. And when the younger generation grows up, they take their turn. So they coach, they cheer, and provide transportation. They deliver meals, support and serve local government and civic organizations. Because volunteerism is the life blood of the Rhinebeck community.

THAT'S WHAT OUR CANDIDATES HAVE DONE!
